

Toyota Operator Training⁺

Creating a culture of safety

A skill for life

Your obligations

It goes without saying that providing your operators with the training they need to perform the tasks required of them is your minimum legal requirement. But did you know that well trained operators equal lower costs? They work more productively, cause less damage to their equipment and goods, they can even use less fuel, saving money and the environment.

Why choose Toyota?

Toyota Training⁺

The Toyota Training Academy offers your business something extra which we call Training⁺. We help you to get the very best return on the investment you have made in material handling equipment. All our instructors specialise in material handling training and have undergone specific training on the full range of products on which they teach.

In addition to comprehensive training on safe operation, Toyota instructors will help your operators understand the special features of their equipment that will help them work most productively. We can also deliver training in techniques to help reduce fuel consumption and prolong the life of the equipment, reducing costs and helping you meet your environmental commitments.

Should your training needs span a large number of sites and team members we can train your in-house training team and help you plan an effective roll-out.

Alternatively, we can act as your training partner. We manage all your training records and schedule new courses, assessments and refresher training to ensure your team is always adequately trained to comply with its Approved Code of Practice (ACoP) and legal requirements.

Courses for every need

Product courses

We can offer training on almost any piece of material handling equipment in your business at novice, refresher, advanced, task specific, conversion and train the trainer levels, for groups and individuals on all makes and models

Equipment courses available:

- Counterbalance, electric, gas and diesel
- Reach trucks
- Pallet trucks
- Order pickers, low, medium and high
- VNA man up and man down
- Rough terrain, telescopic and masted
- Tow tractors
- Mobile elevated work platforms and scissor lifts

All training on raised platform equipment includes rope and abseil training where appropriate. Training can be offered as Toyota certified or nationally recognised RTITB standard and to conform to the HSE Approved Code of Practice (ACoP).

Safety courses

In many operations, equipment operation will only form part of the team's work each day, so Toyota offer a range of general safety courses for your operators and managers, helping to ensure all your operations are performed safely and to current best practice. We can deliver training at your premises or at one of our national training facilities.

Safety courses include:

- Safety for supervisors
- Manual handling

Your place or ours

Wherever you are located in the UK, we can train on your premises or at one of our fully equipped facilities. With a large training fleet of warehouse and counterbalance trucks, racking, yard space and classroom facilities, we have everything to hand to deliver a wide range of training programmes at our centres in Kent, Slough, Gloucester, Leicester, Castleford, Warrington and Glasgow.

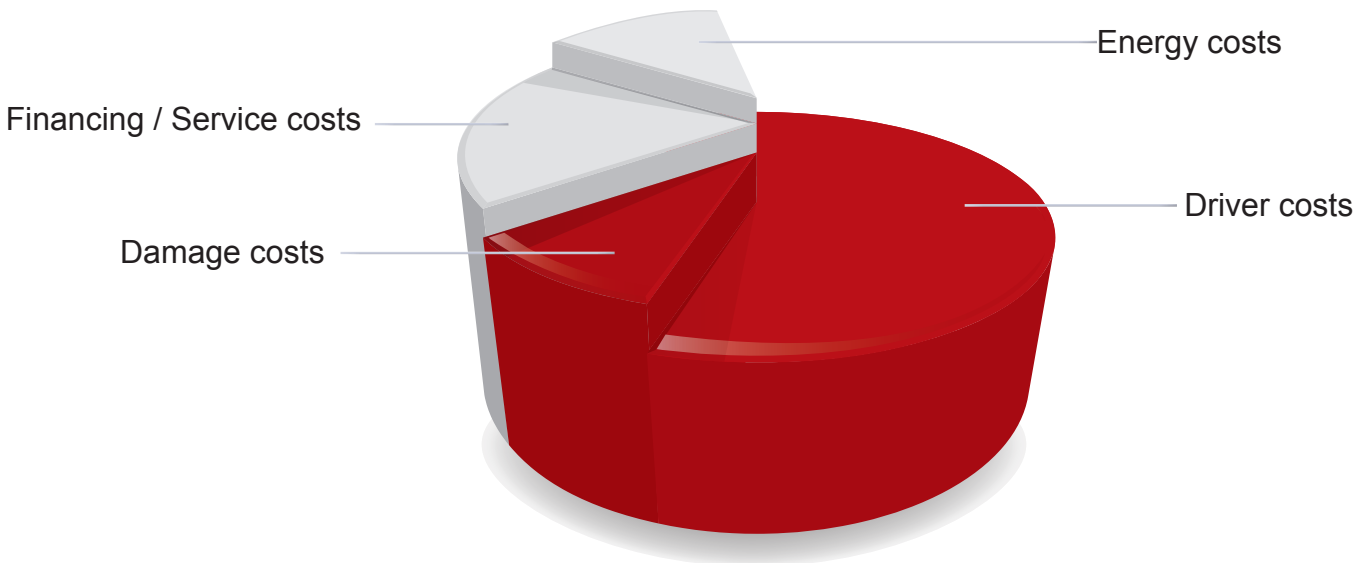

Reduce your costs with Toyota training

Research has shown that operator training can have a significant effect on your overall material handling costs. Using a counterbalance truck as an example, all major costs including damage, energy use and servicing are directly influenced by the operator.

A well trained operator will cause less damage to the equipment, goods and the surrounding area. In comparison to an operator with basic training they perform each task more quickly and accomplish more in their working day. Through using good driving practice they will also minimise wear and tear on the truck, helping to increase its working life and reduce downtime.

An awareness of fuel efficient driving techniques can also impact your energy costs in the long term, which is not only good news for your business, but good news for the environment too. We can offer a free training survey to help identify your requirements.
